

Stichera at "Lord, I Call"

Beheading of the Glorious Prophet, Forerunner, and Baptist John - August 29

Tone 6
Sticheron 1

Russian Imperial Court Chant
arr. from L'vov/Bakhmetev

Soprano
Alto

Tenor
Bass

During the celebration of shameless Herod's birth - day, the terms of the oath to the wanton danc - er were ful - filled, for the Baptist's head was cut off and carried like food on a plat - ter in the presence of those reclining at the [loathsome ban-quet.]

loath-some ban - quet. Truly they feasted on wickedness and mur - der. But let us bless the Fore - runner as is his due, // and honor him as the greatest born of wom - en!

Sticheron 2

The dance of the devil's dis - ci - ple was rewarded with thy head, O Fore - run - ner. Oh, ban - quet of blood! Would that [thou hadst never sworn, . . .]

thou hadst never sworn, deceitful Her - od! Better that thou lie than shed right-eous blood! But let us bless the Bap - tist as is his due, // and honor him as the greatest born of wom - en!

Sticheron 3

In demonic love and fiery passion, O Her - od, thou didst condemn him who reproved thine a - dul - ter - y. For the [sake of an oath . . .]

sake of an oath to a danc - ing girl, thou didst deliver his holy head to that Jez - e - bel. Woe to thee! How hast thou dared such mur - der? Why was the wanton dancer not con-sumed by fire? But let us bless the Bap - tist as is his due, // and honor him as the greatest born of wom - en!

Sticheron 4

Again Herodias raves with rag - ing lust. Oh, dance of deceit and feast of mur - der! The Baptist is beheaded, and Herod is trou - bled. // Through the prayers of Thy Forerunner,

O Lord, grant peace to our souls!