FIRST KONTAKION

O Holy Father Yakov whose children number more than the stars in the northern sky, Whose life and teachings have become a ladder reaching from earth to heaven: Having wrestled with temptation and fought the good fight, you have become our valiant intercessor before the Lord our God. Pray to Him for us who venerate your sacred memory and who strive to continue your holy work as the New Israel in the New World of America, That we may sing with love and joy to you, the messenger of reconciliation and peace: Rejoice O Holy Father Yakov, Baptist and Enlightener of the Native Peoples of Alaska!

FIRST IKOS

Born on the Island dedicated to the Holy Great Martyr George, O Father Yakov, you have become a warrior for Christ, vanquishing every temptation that arose within your heart and soul, bringing peace to a land where only violence had reigned, reconciling hostile tribes by preaching to them the Gospel of peace and forgiveness. You became a father of many nations as you baptized and enlightened thousands of people who had never known Jesus Christ, pastoring your scattered flock in the Aleutian Islands, the Yukon Delta and at New Archangel. In your humility, devotion, piety and perseverance, you have become the image of the perfect evangelist to us who stand before your holy icon and offer these praises to you:

Rejoice! First flower of the Alaskan wilderness! Rejoice! First son of the Aleut nation called to the Holy Priesthood! Rejoice! Joy of the Pribilof Islands! Rejoice! Father of Atka and the Aleutian Archipelago! Rejoice! Candle illuminating the Arctic night! Rejoice! Light, kindling the flame of the Christian Faith in the north! Rejoice! O Holy Father Yakov, Baptist and Enlightener of the Native Peoples of Alaska!

At an early age you joined the Aleut and Russian faithful, gathered in the chapel of St. George, singing: Alleluia

You persevered through many hardships to bring the Light of Christ to your flock in remote villages and settlements, by the power of the glorified and resurrected Lord, you continued your apostolic ministry in Alaska, where you are remembered today in songs of praise:

Your life, O holy Father, was filled with disappointment, hardship and tragedy. Your wife Anna became ill and died at the hospital in Sitka. Your house at Atka burned and your nephew Vasily, whom you loved as a son, also suddenly died, leaving you homeless and alone. SEVENTH IKOS
The Athabaskan Indians, whose homeland lies in the heartland of Alaska, heard of your mission work among their Eskimo neighbors and invited you to visit them. Paddling upstream, you reached their settlement at Shageluk in three days, and preached the Word of God to them. You counted over a hundred canoes, kayaks and boats converging on the river, where you baptized more than three hundred souls. Their descendants today glorify you:

EIGHTH IKOS
Traveling across the frozen tundra by dog sled, you struggled to visit the Eskimo settlements in the delta region. You discovered the site of St. Juvenaly’s martyrdom and asked his intercessions for your apostolic labors. Your missionary endeavors required you to risk your health and safety as you persevered for nearly twenty more years on the shores of the Bering Sea, where we celebrate your memory in song:

NINTH IKOS
St. Innocent, your bishop, appreciated your talents and dedication, conferred and consulted with you about the progress of the mission in Alaska and recognized your accomplishments. Others were jealous or ignorant of your true character and unjustly attacked you. Knowing of your remarkable humility and patience, we sing with love to you:

Rejoice! You prayed for those who criticized and slandered you!
Rejoice! You followed the Lord’s command and example and forgave them all!

TENTH IKOS
For nearly forty years you dwelt in the Alaskan wilderness, serving Jesus Christ as a modern apostle. You brought healing to the sick as an elder of the Church, fulfilling the instructions of your apostolic namesake, James. Because of your missionary labors and the miraculous cures that accompanied your ministry, accept these hymns of thanksgiving from our unworthy lips:

Rejoice! Physician of bodies and healer of souls!
Rejoice! Teacher of pastors and guide of the Faithful!
Rejoice! You were inspired by the joy of the Resurrection!

Alleluia!

ELEVENTH IKOS
Summoned to Sitka to answer unjust accusations against you, you left the land of the Eskimo people and entered the territory of the Tlingit. You spent the last years of your earthly life serving them in their chapel and preaching the Word of God to them. Today, they join us in singing these praises to you:

Rejoice! Apostle to all Alaska!
Rejoice! Father of the Native Peoples!
Rejoice! Teacher and guide by your words and example!
Rejoice! Your heroic life inspires us all!
Rejoice! True son of St. Herman and St. Innocent!
Rejoice! Faithful and humble servant of our Lord Jesus Christ!
Rejoice! O Holy Father Yakov,
Baptizer and Enlightener of the Native Peoples of Alaska!

TWELFTH KONTAKION
While in Sitka, you located the grave site of your beloved wife and erected a fitting memorial to her. You lived in the All-Colonial School during your final years, offering your knowledge and wisdom to another generation of future missionaries. With simplicity and humility, you prepared new laborers for the plentiful harvest. Through them we have become your spiritual children, and praise God for your faithful ministry in Alaska, singing:
Alleluia!

TWELFTH IKOS
O Holy Father Yakov, you fell asleep in the Lord and were buried in a place of honor, at the doors of the Tlingit chapel you had served. TheAleuts, Russians, Creoles, Athabascan, as well as the Yup’ik and Tlingit nations today celebrate your memory:
