The sun was darkened by Your Passion, O Christ, but all creation was enlightened by the light of Your Resurrection.//

Accept our evening song, O Lover of man!

The Lord is King; He is robed in majesty!

Sticheron 2

Your life-bearing Resurrection, O Lord, enlightened the whole universe, recalling Your creation. Delivered from Adam's curse, we sing: // O Almighty Lord, glory to You!

You are the changeless God, Who, suffering in the flesh was changed. Creation could not endure seeing You on the Cross. It was filled with fear while praising Your patience. By descending to hell
You have granted to the world life and great mercy.

You endured death, O Christ, to deliver the race of men from death. You rose from the dead on the third day, raising with Yourself those who knew You as God.

Holiness befits Your house, O Lord, forevermore!

Sticheron 4

V. Holiness befits Your house, O Lord, forevermore!

Aposticha, Tone 3 (Common Chant) - p. 3
Then "Glory..." and the rest.
If there is a Doxastichon appointed from the Menaion:

"Glory...," Doxastichon, "Now and ever...," Theotokion.
If not, then:

"Glory...now and ever..." and the Theotokion.

The tone of the Aposticha Theotokion typically follows the tone of the preceding sticheron.
